The Center recognizes that the frontier scientific issues of today are often the mainstream science of tomorrow. Among its many accomplishments is development of the Center for Women's Health Research, Leadership and Advocacy (WHRLA) who's mission is

- To improve the health status of all women across the lifespan through interdisciplinary health research, education, leadership and advocacy. This not only includes physical but financial health as well.
- To promote the growth and development of multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary collaboration and foster excellence in women's health research at Temple University.
- To empower women by broadening the concept of women's health to include all factors-- financial, legal, educational and psychosocial, as well as physical--which impact the health and well being of women across the lifespan.
- To foster collaboration among research scholars, administrators, advocates and community leaders from across multiple disciplines~ including education, law, business, sociology, psychology, economics, and all of the health professions, to improve the lives of women.
- To advance the recruitment, retention, and leadership development of women through educational programs, material and curriculum development.

Organization Purpose & Mission:

The National Bar Association, Women Lawyers Division, Philadelphia Chapter (WLD) was formed to address the challenges to advancement in the legal profession faced by women of color in the Philadelphia area, including minimized opportunities to form networks and find mentors with similar interests and backgrounds. While strides have been made since 1927 when Sadie T. M. Alexander became the first black woman to become a member of the Pennsylvania Bar, the organization continues to be relevant as women of color still find themselves facing unique obstacles to career advancement in the legal profession. The WLD continues its efforts in advancing diversity in the city's law schools, law firms and corporations through its scholarship programs, continuing legal education seminars, community service projects and networking opportunities.

Organization Purpose & Mission:

Villanova University is an independent coeducational institute of higher learning founded by the Augustinian Order of the Roman Catholic Church. The University is a community of persons of diverse professional, academic, and personal interests who in a spirit of collegiality cooperate to achieve their common goals and objectives in the transmission, the pursuit, and the discovery of knowledge. This community serves society by developing and sustaining an academic environment in which the potentialities of its members may be realized. Villanova is committed to those same high goals and standards of academic integrity and excellence as well as personal and corporate achievement that characterize all worthy institutions of higher learning. As a Catholic institution, Villanova both emphasizes the values of the Iudaeo-Christian humanistic tradition and concerns itself with all value systems. The University attempts to develop an environment in which students, faculty, and staff may experience a Christian intellectual and moral perspective, believing that the teachings of the Catholic faith are applicable in every area of human activity. Although Villanova functions as an independent institution in the conduct of its own affairs, in matters theological it recognizes its obligations to the Magisterium of the Church. Villanova looks to the Order of Saint Augustine to preserve the University's Augustinian character through its presence and influence and by providing personnel and financial support. In turn, the University recognizes its special relationship to the Order of Saint Augustine by showing appropriate preference to Augustinians in the initial appointment of faculty and staff.
